Senate Committee Still Further Reduces Payne Tariff Rates

LOWER TAX ON WOMEN'S HATS AND GLOVES

Increase on Liquor Expected to Bring $3,000,000 Annual Revenue

WINE INDUSTRY GETS GOOD PROTECTION

More Rates, as Fixed by Representatives, Cut Than Raised in Upper House

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Aldrich presented the tariff bill as amended by the majority of the committee to the Committee on Finance today. A duty of 50 cents per ton, a reduction of 15 cents from the Dingley rates, has been fixed for iron ore and the basic slag, which also was on the free list as the bill was passed by the House is made $1 a ton.

The differential of $2 a ton between iron and scrap iron has been eliminated, but due on both pig and scrap iron is retained at $2.50 a ton, a reduction of $1.50 from the Dingley rates.

The provisions for a separate duty on untempered steel bands and tempered bands, respectively, has been cut out.

Iron and steel plates with layers of other metal imposed by forging or welding, have a duty of 40 per cent ad valorem imposed upon them instead of the 45 per cent duty in the bill as it passed the House. Sheets of iron or steel polish have a reduction of one-fourth of a cent a pound made in the duty. Several slight changes are made in the provision for steel not specifically provided for.

The paragraph defining the terms iron plates, steel plates, plate iron and plate steel has also been eliminated.

The duty on steel rails was left at $3.92 per ton as fixed by the House, but it is stated that this may be slightly increased when the metal schedules are taken up on the floor.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The senate committee on finance met at 10 o'clock today with all members present, and Chairman Aldrich presented the tariff bill as amended by the majority of the committee. Many of the revenue producing features will be reported subsequently, as they are reached, with administrative features of the measure, which will be adopted later.

Senator Aldrich, when required to make a brief summary of the general character of the changes proposed by the senate finance committee of the house tariff bill, furnished the following statement:

In the main the rates in the tariff bill as reported from the senate finance committee are lower than those in the bill as it passed the house. The actual number of reductions being about three times the number of increases. Such increases have been largely rendered necessary to preserve the symmetry of the schedule.

Two Husbands Kill Wives and Children, Then Commit Suicide

MARYSVILLE, Kas., April 12.—John Wilson, a retired farmer of Marysville, shot and killed his wife, wounded his 12-year-old step-daughter, set fire to the house, and then committed suicide, shooting himself in the head early today. Wilson had been drinking.

RENO, Nev., April 12.—In the presence of their two children, J. McFadden, a well-known hotelman, shot his wife and then committed suicide in their apartment this morning. Not content with one shot at his wife, the man literally riddled her with bullets before he turned the weapon to his own head and blew out his brains.

Mrs. McFadden is at the hospital and, although very seriously wounded, was alive late this afternoon and surgeons have hopes that she may recover. McFadden died almost instantly.

Although there are several versions as to the causes leading up to the tragedy, the one which seems to have the most foundation is that McFadden was wrongfully jealous of his wife and was suddenly seized by a homicidal impulse. For a time the whole hotel was in a panic. The children, before whom the tragedy was enacted, ran screaming into the hall at the first shot, and half a dozen people witnessed the man's suicide before they could do anything to avert it. As a matter of fact, the first comers on the scene were too frightened to do anything.

Oil Company Must Pay $1,600,000 Fine

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The Supreme Court of the United States denied the motion for a rehearing in the case of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in which the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment by the Texas courts imposing a fine of $1,600,000 on the company and ousting it from the State.

to do anything. One man who dashed into the room was confronted by McFadden and threatened with his revolver. Neither of the children could tell a very connected story of the shooting. The older said that their father burst in the door and without a single word commenced shooting at their mother, who was engaged at her toilet. The first shot struck her in the side, and as she whirled the man shot three more times, and three of the bullets lodged their mark. Both the man and wife were well known and the fact that they had had any trouble at all was a surprise to their friends. The presumption is that some jealousy interfered with the shooting as a result.

Sneak Thief Gets a $500 Diamond Brooch

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—The theft of a diamond brooch valued at $500 was reported to the police early this morning by Mrs. H. K. Hock, a guest at the Fairmont Hotel. The report, which was telephoned to police headquarters this morning, stated that Mrs. Hock lost the brooch, or that it was stolen from her somewhere between the Fairmont Hotel and the Golden Pheasant restaurant on Van Ness avenue. Detectives Froll and Kelly have been assigned to the case and a thorough search will be made this afternoon for any sneak thief at liberty whom the officers would take to be daring enough to commit such a large theft.

To Spite Husband She Turns Thief

NEW YORK, April 12.—John F. McKenna of Brooklyn declares that his wife, who was arrested on Saturday charged with shoplifting, stole in order to reform him. When she was arraigned in court McKenna said:

"She said that she would teach me to stay at home nights; and that she would spite me by disgracing herself if necessary. Now she has done it."

The woman was held in $500 bail for further examination. The specific charge against her is the theft of three shirts, waists from a Broadway department store.

IS CHASED BY OFFICERS AND HIS FAMILY

Desperate Attempts of Drink-Crazed Man to Kill Himself

DIVES HEAD FIRST OFF ROOF OF HIS HOUSE

Gets Razor and Wounds Self in the Presence of His Relatives

Crazed by drink, and because he could get no more liquor, Dave Hatrik of 869 Milton street made two desperate attempts to commit suicide at his residence this morning about 11 o'clock.

He had been on a long debauch and his family had locked him up and called the police to take him to the Receiving Hospital. When he learned that he was to be taken away, he secured a razor and attempted to cut his throat. The members of his family succeeded, after a terrific struggle, in preventing him from doing this, but not until after he had inflicted one wound in his throat.

While this was going on, Patrolman W. J. Hodgkins was summoned from his beat, and seeing the man's condition, telephoned for assistance. In the meantime Hatrik broke out of the room where he was confined and ran up a ladder to the roof of the house. He slid down to the eaves, and made a plunge which covered a distance of about thirty feet, the man turned a complete somersault, and landed on his feet in a pile of soft earth and escaped unhurt.

He gathered himself together and ran back to the house. By this time Patrolmen Kelly, Neils and Jorgensen had arrived in a patrol wagon, and surrounded the house. Patrolman Jorgensen went up to the roof, but was warned by Hatrik's family to be cautious and not go near him, because he still held the razor in his pocket. As he saw that he was to be arrested, he might cut his throat again.

Coaxed by Friends

The officers told some of Hatrik's friends to coax him down, and they succeeded in doing so by promising to give him more whiskey. When Hatrik reached the ground he was immediately set upon by the policemen and he put up a hard fight. It required the combined strength of all of the policemen to get him into the patrol wagon, and hold him while he was being taken to the Receiving Hospital. It was necessary for all of them to remove him to the operating table, and hold him while the wound in his neck was being sutured, and then to transfer him to a room in the insane division of the hospital. He was laid upon a cot, and strapped down securely, and there he will remain until he has sobriety up.

Mystery Shrouds Disappearance Of Berkeley Citizen With $300

BERKELEY, April 12.—After returning from an afternoon spent at Piedmont Park yesterday, Frank Shiner, a well-known merchant, keeping a delicatessen store at 591 Treve street, dropped mysteriously from sight, and has not been heard of since. With him went $300, which leads his wife to believe that he was the victim of foul play.

The incidents surrounding Shiner's disappearance are very puzzling to the police. He left his wife at her home two blocks from the store at 5 o'clock, and made an investigation of the premises and saw that nothing had been molested during his absence. As he did not return at 6 o'clock, Mrs. Shiner walked over to the store, but could find no trace of her husband.

Was at Store

The door was wide open, and there were evidences that he had been writing at his desk in the rear end of the store but a few moments before.

Believing that her husband had simply gone to get a cigar, Mrs. Shiner sat down, and after waiting an hour, looked the door and went to her home. Shiner was not there. Inquiry all about the neighborhood failed to develop a trace of him.

Shiner, who might work on Mrs. Shiner's coming, appeared to a neighbor, and the in turn sought the assistance of the Berkeley police.

It is to be noted, however, that a man had been found. Mr. Shiner says that he and his wife had lived happily together for eight years, and that he had been in the store when they were married. The $300 which he carried with him was the result of a Saturday's work.

Business Good

It has been doing a very prosperous business in his present location since the earthquake, and no reason is given for his disappearance.

Mrs. Shiner is prostrated by her husband's disappearance.

What adds to the peculiar case, is the fact that Shiner, in broad daylight in a public place, had been seen by several persons.

Shiner, who is a well-known citizen, is a native of California, and has been in Berkeley for many years.

CUPID IS AGAIN BUSY WITH MRS. EVANS

She Discovers Her Affinity and Causes Worry to Friends

Blames Former Husband For Charge Made Against "Boy" Osborne

Groom-to-Be Is Said to Have Failed to Pay Bill at Florists

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Mrs. Maud Evans, the former wife of Naval Constructor Evans, may return to England, as the scenes of former triumphs, as a concert hall singer, the bride of Captain John Graham, the only son and heir of an English baronet, if his father does not object, and probably, anyway, if the heir keeps to his public statement that he intends to marry her regardless of his family's wishes.

This is the latest gossip which is agitating the circle of friends in which Constructor Evans and his former wife moved. The question just now among them is: "Who is Captain 'Jack' Graham?"

He says he is the commander of a troop of Highlanders in the English army; that he is the heir to a baronetcy; that he has an allowance of $400 a month; that this allowance is paid to him by John Lawson, manager of Balfour, Guthrie & Company.

Mr. Lawson this morning says he knows nothing about Graham's family and never met him until he entered his office broke, and he loaned him a few dollars.

Lawrence Llane, proprietor of a hotel shop at 315 Sacramento street, says he loaned Graham $3 and trusted him for a large bouquet of roses on the strength of his reference to Mr. Lawson.

Because of the story the man told him of his standing and his wealth. He says he was not going to sue him for the money, because he said it would be too much like sending good money after bad.

Calls Him Cad

Naval Constructor Evans says that Graham is "a bounder and a cad of the first water."

The friends of Mrs. Evans say that this man has an undue influence over her. Mrs. Evans is wearing a $300 engagement ring which it is said Captain John Graham presented to her.

What Graham Says

"I don't know what Sir John will say," Graham remarked at the Hotel yesterday, referring to his father's probable attitude toward the approaching marriage. "Dad has strange ideas about marriages to actresses, and if he disapproves of this match he may cut me off without a penny. But I am going to marry Mrs. Evans in spite of all opposition."

"Friends here have wired my father of my intention to marry Mrs. Evans, and I expect that he will come here from London in less than two weeks."

Mrs. Evans' parents have telegraphed that they, too, are coming to this coast. "It is my intention that we all go to England in about a month, and wait there until Mrs. Evans is legally free to marry me. Her father has a permanent decree of divorce from Lieutenant Evans will be granted in January."

"I have consulted Attorney Earl Rogers."

NOY'S MAJORITY FIXED AT FROM 300 TO 800 VOTES

Both Sides Claim Hotly Contested Election

ALAMEDA, April 12.—There is every indication at noon today that one of the heaviest votes cast in a political campaign in this city will be recorded. It is estimated that the vote will be 3000, and even the 3000 has been predicted. Careful canvases of the various precincts indicate at this hour that Noy will be elected by a majority of 800 votes. This is the highest prediction, but it is generally conceded that Noy will win in any event.

Both Sides Claim Election

Both sides are claiming the election and the betting now is even. Of the three precincts, Noy will win the majority of them and he is making a hard fight. There is plenty of Noy money offered on the street with few takers on the other side.

The lowest estimate given to Noy for his predicted majority is 300. Sentiment has greatly changed since last Saturday and Noy's strength is better now than it was then, when he was running very strongly. The Fordor people, in the issuance of campaign circulars, are determined to have Noy forces, and which were concerned about this city Sunday, are considered to have been ground by doing so.

Early Vote Is Heavy

As early as 8 o'clock this morning an extremely heavy vote had been polled all over the city, and it is claimed by the politicians who are watching the progress of this bitter fight minutely that Noy cannot lose. However, the fight is close and very bitter. The estimate of leading politicians in the councilman fight indicates that Walker, Krumb and Tackett will win their respective ward fights. Noy is running strong, but Ellis seems to have a slight advantage at this hour.

Mayor E. R. Taylor, a strong Noy supporter, said at noon today: "Noy will win by at least 800 majority over his opponent. I feel extremely confident of this, as after a careful canvass of the various precincts of the city, the indications are that he will win by this good majority. An extremely heavy vote is being polled and will total at least 3000."

RAILWAYS CONFER ON NEW CROSSING

S. P. and Key Route Have Difficulties Crossing Cordillera Creek

BERKELEY, April 12.—The Southern Pacific is confronted with some peculiar engineering problems in the construction of the north end of its new electric line on California street, which will cross the Key Route at Cordillera creek. A conference will be held at once with the Key Route people to facilitate a solution. The difficulty lies in the method of crossing proposed for the new Key Route along Sacramento street and the Hartman line on California street after they reach the creek through which flows Cordillera creek. The Key Route will turn northeast on Hopkins street at the terminus of Sacramento, following a slight grade up the hill toward the Crumpton road. East, where the Southern Pacific will reach the end of California street, the elevation is much above the end of Sacramento street, with the result that it must construct a high trestle across the ravine, permitting the Key Route to cross underneath, or make a deep cut on California street to reduce grade to the Hopkins street level. Assistant Chief Engineer Miller of the Hartman line and General Manager Kelly of the Key Route are considering the difficulty this afternoon.

CLIMATE ONE OF THE GREATEST ATTRACTIVE ASSOCIATED WITH ALASKA-YUKON-PACIFIC EXPOSITION

SEATTLE SUMMERS, BRILLIANTLY CLEAR, ALWAYS COMFORTABLE WITH DAYS RUNNING WELL INTO THE NIGHTS

SEATTLE, Wash., April 12.—If it were not for the warm waters that flow this way with the Japan current, Seattle would grow as cold in winter as Minnesota, and if it were not so far north it would be a summer city. As it is, it is the thermometer so far forgets itself as to hit twenty above zero in winter, or 85 in summer, the local newspapers print a column about it every day, and the Associated Press sends out a story on a coal day, or a hot day in the Northwest. The weather is the season may be.

Climate, as a matter of fact, is to be one of the greatest attractions that will attach to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition which opens on June 1st. Seattle's summers are like the Indian summer of the east, brilliant and comfortable, and with days that run well into nights, for the city is so far north that it comes strongly under the Arctic influence and is still the banner of the sun in the sky.

With the climatic advantages of Puget Sound during the summer months, it possesses in addition more attractive features for side trips and excursions than is offered by any other body of water in the world. The waters of Puget Sound, the Straits of Juan de Fuca, Hood Canal and the thousand miles of inland waterways and inlets comprise the finest yachting opportunities in existence. Steamer service is adequate and every point may be easily reached, and this with small expense.

The entire mountain country is rich in lakes and streams, and there is none of these in which trout and salmon are not plentiful and easily taken. The

SUGGEST CLAIMS BE COMPROMISED

Van Tassel, With Two Passengers, Sails From Oakland to Sunol

Officials Propose to Swap Land Claimed by Two Cities

Captain A. P. Van Tassel made a successful ascension yesterday in the big experimental balloon Berkeley, belonging to the San Francisco Aero Club. Accompanying him were two well-known aeronauts, Knox Maddox, a San Francisco attorney, and J. H. Maaten, of the Crocker National Bank of that city. Both men predicted it one of the most successful balloon ascensions ever made in California.

The balloon started at 11 o'clock yesterday morning from its moorings at the corner of College and Alameda streets, Berkeley, and at 2 o'clock, landed successfully at a point four miles from Sunol, Contra Costa county, under absolute guidance and control of the aeronauts.

It was the original intention of Captain Van Tassel to land on Mount Hamilton, in Santa Clara county, but the wind currents changed its course, and it was blown in a northerly direction. Knox Maddox makes the following statement concerning the balloon's flight: "We left Berkeley at 11 o'clock and after reaching an altitude of 1,000 feet we were able to land on the hill which carried us on the course we had planned to sail."

"Before I entered the basket the atmospheric conditions were promising, and under the guidance of Captain Van Tassel we had no trouble in maneuvering."

"We were caught by a gentle wind as soon as we had risen and drifted over the city without any difficulty. Twelve we reached an altitude of 1,000 feet. The atmosphere was not cold, on the contrary, we frequently felt warm currents."

"We had planned to sail over the Santa Clara valley and land at Mt. Hamilton, but the arrangements were altered."

"At 2 o'clock we landed four miles from Sunol and experienced no difficulty in descending. My purpose in accompanying Van Tassel was more for observation than for anything else. At all times the balloon was steady—just as steady as a foon. The trip was delightful."

This is the second successful flight made by the Berkeley. February 28 the balloon made a preliminary ascension with Captain Van Tassel in charge. It was accompanied by C. C. Bradley.

ROOSEVELT ADMITS NEW MEMBER TO FAST GROWING ANANIAS CLUB

PARIS, April 12.—Theodore Roosevelt and a correspondent of Le Journal are engaged in a controversy regarding the veracity of the correspondent. Le Journal sent its representative to Naples to see Mr. Roosevelt and subsequently the paper published a long interview with the former President, which was widely copied. Upon arrival at Port Said last Friday Mr. Roosevelt sent a cablegram to a Paris paper saying he had given no such interview.

This was published together with the assertion of the correspondent that he talked half an hour with Mr. Roosevelt and that the text of the interview as given was strictly accurate.

This denial coming to the eye of Mr. Roosevelt at Suez he has again cabled Paris reiterating his denial and characterizing the interview as an "impudent fabrication without a particle of foundation." He says also that he never saw the correspondent of Le Journal.

The correspondent has replied with a new affirmation of the truth of the interview and declares he is prepared to bring further proof of his veracity.

Dainty Comedienne Is Also a Lightning Change Artist

Hetty Urma at the Bell Theater.

Miss Alice Davenport, who is appearing at the Bell Theater this week in a remarkably strong one-act drama, entitled "Now," is an actress well known to theatergoers. She has appeared in some of the best American productions and since her advent into vaudeville has made a place for herself in the dramatic world. In the tragic sketch, in which she appears in the character of a French woman, marked ability is displayed, which combined with her unusual good looks, make her act one of the very best that has ever been booked at the Bell. The fair actress is interesting as a relative of the late illustrious Fanny Davenport, as a newspaper writer of note and an altogether entertaining and versatile woman.

The Maroon Twins are back again and their welcome was most vociferous. These two top-notch comedians are a regular scream, the difference in their height, three feet or more, being a source of constant amusement to the audience. Their knock-out turn is a hummer. There is plenty of action (it is largely a pantomime skit) and fun a plenty.

Dainty Comedienne

There is a dainty comedienne on the bill who makes a big hit in different national character impersonations. Miss Hetty Urma is the charming little entertainer and she proves herself to be one of the best quick change performers in the business.

There are two monologists on the program and each are worth of extended notices. Miss K. Watson in "Story Telling" is hard to surpass in opening some puts him right in the audience and as he unfolds a story in the deliberate fashion he also sings a number of songs that catch the fancy. Elmer Tenn is full of gingerly humor that goes for his choice bits passed out soon as an instantaneous act.

Sketch Artist

Lightning change artist, Hetty Urma, is a comedian who talks with lightning like rapidity. There are bits of comedy and pleasing artistic sketches that prove his readiness with the change. He is a comedian and an unusual and most interesting feature. Three reels of the best European motion pictures are shown, including in which is one depicting the chase and capture of a mammoth whale, that is thoroughly enjoyed.

Each week at the Bell there is a disposition to show at least one motion picture of a big hit. High in addition to the good natured comedy scenes that are always provocative of laughter.

CONFESSION OF MURDER DOUBTED

Police Believe Murphy's Supposed Statements Were Mere Boasting

The police officials of this city are inclined to regard the statement alleged to have been made by James Murphy, who is now serving a sentence in the county jail for an assault upon his father-in-law, that he is the man who murdered Patricia Brown on the morning of December 17, 1904, as the senseless boast of an individual who was trying to make the impression that he really is a bad man, when in reality he has no more backbone than to attack an old man.

Murphy is supposed to have boastfully made his wife and child drunk, and he killed Officer Brown. Now that Murphy is in the toils for an assault upon his father-in-law, he is now coming to the front and tells what he knows of the murder of Patricia Brown. He stated to her five years ago, that he was the man who murdered Patricia Brown. He is believed to be the reason why she is informing the police at this time.

DOUBTS STORY

In speaking of the matter, Chief of Police Wilson said this morning: "There was absolutely no one that saw who shot Patricia Brown. Even if it were the facts nor could he. I don't think there is any thing that Murphy has said, which will help him in his attempt to make a confession. Murphy will be thoroughly investigated, and if conclusive, convincing evidence is given, and not mere talk, Murphy may have another and a very grave charge to answer to when he leaves his time for hammering his father-in-law."

SECURE LICENSE 17 YEARS BEFORE THEY ARE WEDDED

On April 6, last, the Rev. Alexander Allen of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, united in marriage James Lewis Aguilar and Louise McWilliams. The license authorizing this wedding was issued from the County Clerk's office on July 13, 1892, when James E. Grano was county clerk, and Robert Edgar, now police judge of Berkeley, was deputy. Edgar's name appears, showing that he issued the license.

At that time Aguilar was 62 years of age, and his fiancée 29. Just why the couple permitted an event of such importance to be delayed 17 years is a mystery, but the ceremony performed, which the license authorized, was not explained. Mr. and Mrs. Aguilar reside in Oakland, but their address is not given.

W. C. STADTFELD, MUSICIAN, IS DEAD

Was One of the Best Known Musical Directors on the Coast

HIS FATHER APPEARED IN GRAND OPERA HERE

Dead Man Was Also Manager of the University Faculty Club

BERKELEY, April 12.—As the result of a stroke of paralysis received at the Faculty Club of the University of California two months ago, William Christian Stadtfeld, one of the best known musicians of the coast, died at his home at 2805 Benvenue avenue yesterday morning.

Besides being assistant secretary and general manager of the Faculty Club, Stadtfeld was secretary of the Musical and Dramatic Committee of the university, director of the choir of the First Presbyterian Church, the San Rafael choral society and many of the directors of the Long Musical Club of San Francisco.

Father in Opera

Jacob Stadtfeld, the father of the dead man, was the founder of the Loring Club and preceded his son as director. He was the first grand opera singer on the coast, when he made his appearance in San Francisco in company with Parepa Rosa, who is known the world over as a lover of grand opera. Jacob Stadtfeld died in Berkeley last summer.

Stadtfeld was a native of California and was an accountant by profession, although a great lover of music, to which he devoted a large part of his time. He was highly esteemed by the faculty of the university and to such an extent that when he received the stroke of paralysis two months ago it was unanimously voted that the position of manager of the Faculty Club would be his for life and the duties of that position have been cheerfully performed by other members of the faculty ever since Stadtfeld was unfit for duty.

Survived by Widow

Stadtfeld is survived by a widow, Mrs. Caroline A. Stadtfeld; two brothers, Jacob Stadtfeld of San Francisco and Joseph Stadtfeld of Vacaville. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Charles A. Rudolph and Mrs. M. K. Grant of Berkeley. The funeral will be held from the Berkeley residence at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the body will be cremated at the Oakland Crematory.

The Chinamen, Wong Yook Sam, Ah Ah, Jim and Wong Yee, were trying to evade the immigration laws and make a landing in this city. # FALSE REPORTS, SAY CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS

NEW YORK, April 12.—Although some 600 Christian Scientists gathered in the grand ball room of the Hotel Plaza yesterday afternoon no services were held and the meeting was adjourned until next Sunday. In his letter, announced that the ball room had been leased for a year for Sunday meetings, but Miss Della M. Gelbert, the moving spirit behind the project, declared that she desired it best to postpone the service a week in view of the fact that what she styled erroneous statements had been circulated concerning the plan. She was particularly emphatic in saying that Christian Scientists were not making a bid to attract persons socially prominent.

"That is not the aim of Christian Scientists at all," she said. "Neither must we have had to obtain the consent of Mrs. Eddy before we could go ahead with the present arrangements. The report that such was the case created a decidedly wrong impression."

Easter Throngs Fill Churches

In all the churches in Oakland yesterday Easter Sunday was fittingly observed. The weather, unlike that which has accompanied a number of previous Easters, was ideal and pretty spring bonnets and suits accordingly held sway. Every church in the city was crowded to its full capacity, Easter lilies in abundance graced every altar and everywhere the happy Easter spirit prevailed. Special sermons and song services were heard, nearly every church having augmented choirs.

On "Immortality"

At the First Congregational Church, Rev. Charles R. Brown spoke on "Immortality." In part he said:

"It had been a great day for those two men on the road to Emmaus. In retrospect it was like a summer day in California. In the morning the sky was overcast—their minds were clouded with disappointment, their hearts heavy with grief. In the stress of their feelings they went for a walk to Emmaus—they went slowly and sadly for they were burdened in spirit. They rustled that Jesus should have redeemed Israel but now he was dead."

"But as they went a mysterious stranger joined them. He drew from them the story of their unhappiness. He began to speak and in his speech they found a new basis for a mighty hope."

Glorious Sunset

"As the day wore on the sky grew brighter, until there was a glorious sunset. There was a tender and beautiful radiance upon the whole scene. They walked on and when they returned saw Jerusalem at night the sky was glorious with its multitude of stars and the full splendor of the Paschal moon."

"What a transcript it all is of human experience. The widow battling alone, the mother whose son is dead, the orphan deprived of a father's love are all saying 'We trusted that it had been said that he should live for ever and ever. What a company of people having met with a profound disappointment in venturing its way toward Emmaus!'"

To Lead the Way

"But along that road of human sorrow an august figure walks. He comes to lead with those who walk and are sad. He comes to open to us the scriptures. He causes our hearts to burn within us in the glad response they make to his high claim of immortality. He comes to lead us where the sky is clear and in the wide open space we see a life that transcends time and with the shroud of death. He comes to make himself known to us in the breaking of that bread which feeds the whole nature of man."

"Repeat the experiences of that memorable day. If you will in your own inner life. Have eyes to see ours to hear and heart to believe in the risen Christ and for you too the whole day of life will be similarly transformed. You will return to your place saying 'The Lord is risen indeed. And because he lives, I shall live also.'"

The sermon at St. Mary's Catholic Church was preached by Rev. Edward Dempsey on the "Resurrection." In part, Father Dempsey said:

"Rejoice and be glad for this is the day the Lord has made for us the happy anthem which the church presents to us this morning. Easter day means much to the Christian life for the fact of the resurrection is the source of all our religious hopes. The miracle of the resurrection is the one great manifestation which Christ left to mankind of the truth that he was God."

This truth is the Christian consolation and the spring of his contentment and peace of mind. With the resurrection established as a fact, the Christian rests in the security that the commands, counsels, truths and sacraments which form a religious life are not the words of the great philosopher, the sentiments of a wonderfully wise man, nor the speculations of human wisdom but the words and works of God himself as revealed in the divine nature of our Lord."

In all of the churches there were special services last evening at which sermons were preached by noted divines, and in many of them the service was a musical one.

Berkeley Churches

Special Easter services were heard in all the churches in Berkeley, many of which programs being elaborately prepared by the churches augmented for the occasion. # GOVERNMENT IN ROLL OF CUPID

American Girl Inquires Into Marriage Laws Concerning Noblemen in Italy

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Much speculation has arisen over the identity of the patissier concerned in a diplomatic correspondence between the American and Italian governments in 1906 in regard to the Italian marriage laws. This correspondence was published today but further than stating that the young woman was the daughter of an American of unquestioned standing in the community and the Italian was a nobleman, no other clues are given as to the identity of the parties. Nothing is included to show what success the government had in the role of Cupid.

The correspondence began on January 24, 1906, when the Acting Secretary of State, Loomis, had a letter to the Italian Embassy in this city asking for a statement concerning the Italian law on marriage.

"The Department has been asked by an American, whose daughter is about to marry an Italian nobleman," wrote Mr. Bacon, "as to the legal effect of the certification by an Italian consular agent in the United States, of an American marriage, and whether or not the marriage is certified in all respects exactly equivalent, according to Italian law, to a marriage celebrated in Italy."

The reply was to the effect that a marriage solemnized in America between an Italian subject and an American citizen is absolutely valid in Italy provided the forms and local law has been complied with. The Department was informed that the laws of Italy made no distinction between noblemen and the common people in their right of marriage in a foreign jurisdiction.

"The right of entail has been abolished and nobiliary titles confer no privilege," continued the reply, "not even that of precedence in court or at any public function. Titles of nobility are nevertheless still recognized and the noble woman who marries a nobleman has the right to bear her husband's title."

NEWBURGH ON WITNESS STAND

Other Witnesses Declared They Would Never Believe E. A. S. Blake at All

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—A half score of witnesses took the stand in the trial of A. S. Newburgh, charged with attempting to bribe J. M. Kelly, a Rust juror, to testify to the alleged character of E. A. S. Blake, the prosecution's chief witness. Nearly all of those called declared that they would not believe Blake under oath, and several of them detailed experiences they had with the former real estate promoter and builder, who is now under a sentence of five years in San Quentin for attempting jury bribing.

Among those examined were George Lewis, George S. Pomroy, George B. Newhouse, Frank E. Maxwell, Arthur Williams, William J. Atchison and Thomas P. Fallon.

Newburgh On Stand

The defendant himself was then called to the stand and narrated the story of his dealings with Blake in company with Attorney Frank Murphy, asserting that no offer of bribery money had been made, but that they had merely sought to obtain information as to Kelly's state of mind, he having been on the Rust venire.

As a part of the part of the Attorney Bert Schlesinger entered an objection to the loud consultation held between District Attorney Langdon and his assistant, Attorney Hanley. The defendant's counsel claimed that these little side talks could be heard by the jurors in the box, and Judge Conley directed the attorneys to be more careful.

Vale Crawford, Swinburne and Modjeska.

The death of Algernon Charles Swinburne follows close upon the decease of Madame Helena Modjeska and F. Marion Crawford. Thus within a fortnight the world has lost three great geniuses. Swinburne was the second great English poet of the Victorian age, ranking next to Tennyson, while Crawford was one of the distinguished lights of contemporary fiction.

Although Crawford wrote in English and was the son of an American sire and the descendant on the paternal side from Celtic Puritan ancestors, he was born in Italy and half Italian in blood, and drew his literary inspiration largely from the environment of his childhood. The scenes and characters of his books are drawn mainly from Italian life. But while his thought was colored by the society and religious sentiment in which he grew up his mental processes reveal the Anglo-American cast of his thought. His artist's fancy was also half a paternal inheritance. Poetry and love for the sensuous and the pageantry of history came to him from his Italian mother. He was the only one of the three who died in the full possession of his working powers. Swinburne was a deaf recluse, and had produced little of late years, while Modjeska had passed the zenith of her beauty and triumphs. But Crawford's latest novel, "Stradella," is in his best vein, rich in local color and replete with the sensuous warmth which invests his style with such delicacy and charm.

The eroticism of Swinburne's earlier verse was pagan and unmoral, but not coarse or sensual. While the primal passion of nature revealed itself all through his lines it was clothed in delicious sentiment and embroidered with a rhetoric so chaste and refined that it shocked only Boetian minds and prudish nerves. The charge once made by a Blackwood reviewer that his poetry "bloomed in a compost heap and breathed the odor of moral miasma" is unjust. Swinburne never consciously offended against the canons of morality. He simply discarded convention in presenting a poet's idea of the philosophy of life and love and the sex relation in its sentimental aspect. There was the warm abandon of Cupid naked and unashamed in his numbers, not the sodden appetite of Silenus. He sang the psalm of ever-renewing life—its youth, its bloom, its beauty, fragrance and intoxication of the senses. But the lyre had dropped from his nerveless hands, chilled by age, when death called him. His work was done.

With Crawford it was different. The tide of living productive energy still ran strong within him. Only recently he gave a splendid exhibition of his power of description and narration in "The Greatest Disaster in History"—an account of the earthquake in Sicily and Calabria, printed in The Outlook. The world suffers a genuine loss by his death. Modjeska and Swinburne had played their parts and were merely lingerers on the stage—delightful reminiscences, but no longer active, compelling forces. Ah, but it is a great trio that has gone from us. Hail and farewell! The muse, the drama and literary fiction have been enriched and ennobled by them.

Wu Ting Fang's New Role.

According to a Pittsburg dispatch Chinese Minister Wu Ting Fang is in serious danger of being declared persona non grata by the United States and a demand made by the Secretary of State for his recall by the Peking government. The grave charge is laid against him of shielding two wealthy Chinese—the "higher ups" in a mining swindle foisted on their fellow countrymen—and interfering with the course of justice in their prosecution in the Pittsburg courts, by threatening their dupes with deportation and severe punishment if they aid the local authorities by furnishing information against those accused of promoting the alleged swindle, who are said to be friends of the minister, which will lead to their re-arrest and conviction. Letters written by Minister Fang of the most incriminating character are said to have been unearthed by the Pittsburg police authorities and submitted to Secretary of State Knox. When Fang represented China at Washington some years ago, at the time the exclusion act was pending in Congress, he was guilty of the gross impropriety of lobbying actively in an effort to defeat its passage and was bitter in his public utterances against the measure and its promoters and against the administration for approving it after its passage. He placed himself then in a position to be declared persona non grata, and nothing short of the influence of eastern pro-Chinese sentimentality saved him from that course being taken by the State Department. When he returned to the United States a second time as the Chinese representative, his credentials to the United States government should have been rejected and would have been, probably, had it not been for the fear that it might intensify the boycott against American manufactures which was then on in China and which he was strongly suspected of having suggested and encouraged. Wu Ting Fang is, in fact, a chronic mischief-maker and a constant menace to the maintenance of friendly relations between the Chinese and American governments. If he has been detected red-handed, as is alleged, in protecting criminals by threats and intimidation, the sooner the government takes cognizance of it the better. A foreign representative who is so offensive in his activities cannot be tolerated.

Castro, the International Outcast.

Castro, the deposed Venezuelan President, has been forcibly expelled by the French government from the island of Martinique, being carried by a body of gendarmes on a mattress on board an outgoing French steamer bound for St. Nazaire, a thriving port at the mouth of Loire river. Castro protested violently and made a sham showing of being seriously ill; but all in vain. To relieve himself of the possible charge of inhumanity being laid at his door, the Governor of Martinique appointed a medical commission to make a physical examination of Castro which resulted in a unanimous report that the voyage back to France would not in any sense imperil his life.

The French government is determined that Castro shall not use French soil as a base for organizing and carrying on a revolutionary movement to overturn the present government of Venezuela, with which it is on terms of amity. The British, American and Dutch ports in the West Indies are closed against him also. So far as known the Danish government has not been sounded as to the course it would adopt; but in all probability it would heed a friendly representation made by the American government and keep Castro from landing on any of its West Indian islands. The United States government will exercise the right of protectorate over Cuba and Hayti to keep him from landing on their shores and making a dash thence to the Venezuelan coast.

Castro has announced his intention to cross the French frontier into Spain as soon as he lands at St. Nazaire, unless he is barred out by the Spanish government. The governments of the United States, Great Britain, France and The Netherlands may join in a request to the Madrid authorities to exclude him from Spanish soil and use that country as a base to organize a revolutionary expedition.

What Castro is said to desire is to land anywhere on Venezuelan soil, which if he succeeds in doing, will through the automatic operation of the Venezuelan constitution restore him to the presidency, as it permits the President to depart from the country and place the government under the temporary control of the Vice-President and, on his return, to resume the reins of government immediately. It provides, moreover, that no legislative action shall be taken during the President's absence from the country which shall impair his official rights. However, the Venezuelan Congress declared the office of President vacant after Castro's departure for France and Vice-President Gomez was subsequently elected his successor. Moreover, a court decree has found Castro guilty of conspiring to assassinate Gomez, and the latter is ready to arrest him should he step anywhere on Venezuelan soil. Probably all of the great powers which have had contentions with Castro which they do not desire to have revived, will render friendly aid to the Gomez administration to thoroughly patrol the Venezuelan coast and head off any attempt to land himself or any revolutionary expedition he may outfit.

The Coming Bond Election.

The initiative will be taken by the Council tonight, in all probability, toward calling the bond election in the beginning of next month, in accordance with the suggestion made in Mayor Mott's inaugural message, to raise money for a general and systematic repaving of the main business thoroughfares, water front improvements for the benefit of the city's growing commerce, the erection of necessary municipal buildings, the purchase of more park lands and of new school sites to meet the pressing wants of an extensive territory which is being rapidly built upon and occupied by an ever increasing population of the best type of citizenship.

Fortunately for Oakland's good every branch of the municipal government is in perfect harmony on these propositions of public improvements. There will not be a discordant note sounded in that quarter. The community is practically a unit on the same subject. Bonds will be voted for any reasonable amount whenever the several propositions agreed upon are submitted to the people for their approval. Every citizen realizes the necessity for the carrying out of the public improvements named in the Mayor's message. Every interest in the city will reap a substantial benefit from them. They will expand the field of employment for the wage-earning class. They will enhance the value of the holdings of every property owner. They will increase every branch of trade. They will draw a larger commerce to the water front. Facilities for manufacturing industries will be multiplied. Oakland's fame abroad as a great and growing city will be boosted as it will rightfully deserve to be. More outside capital than has ever yet come this way will flow into the city and its suburbs for investment and the volume of new comers and home-seekers in them will continue to swell their population.

WANT TO CONNECT NILES AND NEWARK

NEWARK, April 12.—The petition recently circulated in the Newark and Niles communities for the establishment of a freight and passenger service on the Southern Pacific line from Niles to Newark was presented to the proper officials of the company last Saturday. The committee representing the Central Improvement Club consisted of F. T. Hawes, P. C. Hansen and Mr. Rogers. Charles C. Crane of Decoto, the general agent of the New York Central line, accompanied the committee. The committee expressed its interest in the immediate future to inaugurate a freight service. The committee was awarded a respectful hearing and from Mr. Stubbs of the freight department received the information that the company expected in the immediate future to inaugurate a freight service. Charles S. Fee, general passenger agent, went over the situation carefully with the committee. He informed them that while the company was housed from all points with requests for motor car service, the request from our people would receive the earnest consideration of the officials of the company. On the whole the committee felt that the matter would receive the earnest consideration of the company.

SLOT MACHINE LAW BEFORE SUPERVISORS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—When the County anti-slot machine ordinance comes up for final passage this afternoon before the Board of Supervisors, the representatives of the Retail Clerks' Association will argue for a compromise proposition to prevent the bill as it now stands from becoming a law. The compromise to be proposed is the McLean ordinance, which does away with the gambling feature and allows the retailer to operate two machines until January 1.

The committee representative of the dealers who have had charge of the campaign for the substitution consists of Thomas Shortall, J. A. Gouldin and S. E. McLean. Mr. McLean, who is affiliated with wholesale cigar interests, and Walter R. Baron, an attorney, will address the Supervisors.

The retail clerks declare that they are willing to eliminate the gambling feature of the slot machine and assert that they have large banking and retail interests behind their proposition for a compromise.

The proponents of the ordinance abolishing the devices will insist that the measure be finally adopted today.

Her fatness weighed upon her, so went to a physician to get rid of some of it. He drew up a careful dietary, she was to eat dry toast, plain boiled beef, etc., and to return in a month and report reduction. ## Kept Bigamy a Secret for More Than 36 Years

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—T. R. Tracey, aged eighty-one, and Mrs. Nancy G. Kelly, aged sixty-one, both of St. Joseph, Mo., were married by Judge John Breckenridge in the Fulton County courtroom.

This was the second time the pair had been married to each other. The first ceremony was performed thirty-six years ago in Missouri but at that time Tracey had another wife living. He never told his second wife the secret until a short time ago, when the first wife died.

The second wife forgave him the deception, but insisted that they be remarried. They accordingly came to Illinois for the purpose. She feared that if the secret so carefully kept should be discovered the pension that may be due her as a widow might be denied. To forestall such discovery, it was decided to remarry and thus prevent any cause for complaint. Both of the principals are feeble.

Bad Tempered Husband Cuts Up Wife's Clothes

PORTLAND Ore., April 12.—Mrs. Joseph Keller swore to a warrant of arrest for her husband, Rudolph Keller, who, she says, cut her clothing in shreds and poured ink on her pretty hats.

Keller is a butcher. His wife says he used a butcher's knife in cutting up a handsome suit of hers, a silk undershirt and some beautiful hats. After he was through snipping, she says he poured ink over the pieces, discoloring them so that it was impossible for her to repair the garments.

She says there was no reason for her husband's act, except insane and groundless jealousy on his part. When she discovered how he had sought vengeance, she consulted her sister and together they visited Municipal Court a few days ago. She swore to a complaint, charging him with the destruction of property, and said she wanted him sent to prison for nineteen months. That period of imprisonment would be sufficient, she declared, to subdue him so that he would never dare to destroy any more of her finery.

Queen Alexandra's Favorite Room

Queen Alexandra's favorite room is her boudoir at Sandringham. There she follows her own tastes without court dictation, and she affectionately talks of her boudoir as "home." The walls are in apple green and white, and the furniture is of the Marie Antoinette style. There is a bric-a-brac collected by the queen herself from all corners of Europe. Everything in the room is of personal selection. She passes most of her leisure time there, usually alone or with her friend and confidante, Charlotte Knollys. Tea is always served at 5 o'clock in the boudoir, the queen herself pouring out the tea for her women guests.

Woman Who Jilted Society Leader Secretly Married

MRS. HENRY B. PATTON, Who Before Her Sudden Marriage Last Saturday was Miss Margaret Hazlehurst of Philadelphia and Well Known in the Quaker City Social Circles.

With this marriage the romantic career of Miss Hazlehurst reaches a climax. She was engaged to be married to Frederick Gilbert of New York before she was introduced to society, and then when girls of her age were coming out and her wedding was about to take place, she suddenly jilted the prospective bridegroom for no apparent reason, and for a time faded out of the public notice.

Friday afternoon shortly before the marriage license bureau closed for the day, Mr. Patton and his bride appeared and obtained a license to wed. This was the first intimation that any of the girl's friends had of her intention to marry, she having vowed at the time of her other failure to go through the marriage ceremony that she would never marry.

DISILLUSION

Your proud eyes give me their wearied splendor;
Your cold loose touch and your colder smile
The truth to my jealous heart's surrender—
You then, having loved, me a little while.

Ah, well my sweet, I was sure you would,
For I knew you false when I saw you fair!
I have watched and watched for your altered mood
And have schooled me so that I shall not care.

Yet I know right well if our love were sterling
We had dreamed the earth and the skies of joy
But I—God wot—and you too, my darling,
No true fair flower of girl and boy—

How should we rise to such exaltation
As climbs from a cloud and a splendid star?
How live, how love with such perfect passion,
We—who are only what others are.

—Old Scrap Book, 1890.

TOO LATE

Had I met thee in all thy beauty—
Where thy hand and heart was free—
Where no other claimed the duty
Which thy soul would yield to me,
Had I wooed thee, had I won thee,
Ah, how hied had been my rate—
But thy sweetness hath undone me;
I have found thee—but too late.

Like the fawn that finds the fountain
With the arrow in his heart,
Or like light upon the mountain
Where the snow must ever rest:
I have met thee, but forgot me,
For I feel that I am
Oh, 'tis madness to have met thee—
To have found thee—but too late.

Miss Church is one of the popular girls of the younger set at Washington, and a close friend of Miss Ethel Roosevelt, the two being classmates at school.

Advertised for Housekeeper and Got a Wife

CLEVELAND.—An advertisement for a situation as housekeeper brought about a correspondence that resulted in Mrs. R. D. Alvord, thirty-one, of 6903 Lawn avenue, N. W., leaving for Alpena, Mich., to marry a man she has never seen. C. D. Garvin, prosperous merchant, proposed marriage the day after he received the young widow's picture.

"Something may turn up to prevent the marriage, but I will make the long journey, anyway," laughingly said Mrs. Alvord as she was starting away. She has been kept busy for several days receiving the congratulations of friends.

Mrs. Alvord inserted the advertisement six months ago. Garvin answered, and the correspondence was continued. Every letter added to the romantic features of the courtship. Photographs were exchanged, after which the merchant lost no time in asking the Cleveland woman to be his wife. Mrs. Alvord wired Garvin that she has completed preparations for the trip, and will soon join him in Alpena.

Carrie Nation Is Training Niece to Be a Smasher

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Carrie Nation, the Kansas saloon smasher, is in St. Louis and with her is her understanding in the person of her niece, Miss Carrie Moore of Kansas City, intelligent looking, talkative and twenty-three. Miss Moore admits she is her aunt's pupil, and says she is studying her aunt's methods with a view of carrying on her crusade when she gets too old to wield the hatchet.

"Just as soon as I can muster the courage I am going to try my hand at smashing something in a saloon," said Miss Moore today.

"Just as soon as I get my business straightened out at home I am going right back to Washington," says Mrs. Nation. "The first thing I'll do will be to smash the bar in the New Union Station there. They call it the handsomest station in the world, and I guess it is."

WOMEN SHOULDN'T MARRY Until They Really Know How to Shop Properly

No woman should go to the marriage altar till she has first learned the way to the meat market.

The best is not always the cheapest.

THE SHRINE

In every heart there is one lonely spot.
That memory revisits,—in her tears—
Where wander mute, yet never quite forgot, nor is it the most expensive. Seek the golden mean.
The love of vanished years.

Unneeded "bargains" are unnecessary extravaganzas.
Costly the habit as they are, they husband's purse can buy, but not any cost-free.

Spend the same time and effort on buying your spring lamb as on choosing your spring hat.
If you would be healthy, wealthy and wise, do your own shopping and open your eyes.

—Mrs. William Wallace Clark.

When it is invaded by a small income. She should be to whether the "bargain" she buys at the grocery has with it a good deal of trash.

She should realize that the leading axiom that the best and that more economical and really look longer and really look more suitable for people of moderate means and cost.

"Take the matter of family cars. There are women in New York who order the food supply over the telephone, or never think of the milk is pure or adulterated in their own homes, or even whether or not they are being poisoned by their husbands' day after day simply because they do not know enough to buy pure food.

"Take much less mental energy for flat leaders to send to the bakery and the delicatessen shop and the corner for ready-cooked food up to think out an economical, appetizing, well-balanced menu and go out and buy it. But the second shopping expedition is the right one.

"I spoke of buying 'bargain'—the whole subject of bargain shopping ought to be systematized and straightened out in a text-book and the writer would only need to go downtown on a New York bargain day and use his common sense on what he observed.

"First—a bargain is not a bargain, no matter how cheap, unless it is something the purchaser actually needs. On the other hand, it is silly to adopt the attitude of the man in the funny papers and disbelieve in all bargains. Plenty of legitimate ones really exist, and the woman of limited income should always consider them. But she should understand them.

"There you have it again—she should understand. And she doesn't—that is, the majority doesn't. And she is too old to be taught. Therefore I say, teach the children.

"There is nothing impractical in the idea of regular school courses in shopping. They should be compulsory, for girls, at least. The children should be taught, for instance, that it is both cheaper and healthier to buy plenty of rice and corn-meal and fewer prepared breakfast foods. They should learn that blue points and cavare are a great deal more costly and not nearly so nutritious as baked beans and pot roast.

"They should learn that it is not good taste to wear pink roses in your hat and holes in your shoes. Moreover, it is not healthy or economical.

"And they should learn not to buy canned and prepared foods without noting the labels or the presence of labels. As in the nature study trips, the children might make trips with their teachers about the city. They might be taken to the markets and the big department stores and obtain real experience in buying intelligently.

"I believe firmly that the time is coming in New York when the public schools will take up this very vital question of how to shop."

SURRENDER

So hard I strove to crowd you from my heart.

You who once loved, but love me now no more;

Let all the weary night your face would start

And smile, and mock me as of yore.

Why is it that your name is on my tongue

When the gray dawn first creeps across the hill?

Why is it, ere the lark his song has sung,

Your voice is in my brain and singing still

The old, old love that taunts my weakened will.

There is no shore that can resist the sea!

Oh! I have striven to forget in vain;

So give me now the olden memory.

Come, if you will, through distance and bleak rain,

Come, if you will, although you bring me pain.

Husband Loved All His Sisters-in-Law, and It's All Told in Divorce Suit

ST. LOUIS, April 12.—How Harry J. Holness made love to his wife's sisters was told in Judge Grimm's court in their testimony in Mrs. Holness's suit for divorce. Holness is now superintendent of a printing concern in Mexico City.

The sisters are Miss Luella Bauman, a plump, brunette manicurist, twenty years old, and Miss Mabel Larsen, of Pekin, Ill.

Mrs. Bauman said she was separated from Nick Bauman, her husband, last September on account of his discovery that Holness was writing love letters to her. For a year prior to that time she had been corresponding with him, she testified.

"How often did he write to you?" she was asked.

"His letters were very numerous," replied. "They were love letters."

In response to further questions she said some of the letters were "warmer than others," and explained that Holness wanted her to leave Bauman and elope with him. He wrote to her, she said, that he didn't love his wife.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Bauman said she answered these letters, but that she hadn't intended to elope with Holness until she got a divorce from Bauman. At that time she and Bauman lived in Buffalo.

Miss Larsen said she never willingly received a declaration of love from Holness. But on her birthday, April 21, 1908, she said, he took her downtown to celebrate, and they visited a wine room. She said she refused to drink then, and during a subsequent fight, she said, they reached Delmar Garden, she drank two glasses of wine.

"The wine made her dizzy," she said, and gave her a "strange feeling," so that she insisted on starting home at once. On the street car she became ill and walked into Lafayette Park.

There, she testified, he caressed her, until she regained her strength, and repulsed him. She testified that she did not tell her sister of it.

Mrs. Holness said she was married in March, 1898. Her husband accepted the position in Mexico City in October, 1908, and the following month he sent her a railroad ticket to visit him. She said he told her it was only a visit, and sent a round-trip ticket to make his meaning clear.

A Mexican señorita had won Holness's heart, Mrs. Holness said, and she testified that the girl gave him a flower daisy, which he seemed to cherish.

In August, 1908, Mrs. Holness returned to St. Louis, January 21 of that year, she testified. Nick Bauman sent her a letter written by Holness to Mrs. Bauman. It was on account of this that the Baumans separated. The note, which is an exhibit in the suit, is as follows:

"Sweetheart Mine—I will only write a short note, and I will also send with this one you can read to Nick. Is it all right to write to you at the house, dear?"

"Why do you say you can't write as you want to? You know I like you to write just what your thoughts are. And just forget that foolish dream. When I come East I will convince you that it is not the way things are. Certainly I do love you as much as you do me, or more, and always will. You just be careful and be a good little girl until I see you. I cannot write more, Lou, as I do not want this envelope to look large and suspicious."

"Write me a nice, long, loving letter, telling me whether it is safe for me to address you as this is sent. Then I will write you a longer and more loving letter and will send a picture also. With loving kisses, as always."

This note was signed "H." Accompanying it was a formal note, acknowledging Mrs. Bauman's thanks for a Christmas bracelet Holness had sent her, which she read to Bauman.

Holness, although he was not present at the suit, had filed a cross-bill, in which he said his wife expressed love for F. J. McArthur, Holness's business partner in Mexico, ten years younger than Mrs. Holness, as to this, denied that there was anything improper between her and McArthur. McArthur's deposition, on file in the case, admits he was attentive to Mrs. Holness, but says they were innocent of wrongdoing.

A WOMAN'S WAY

She ever wore upon her lip
The little secret smile
Of one who, thirsting, still may sip
The fountain source the while.

Men sought her, craving the alloy
Whence such content was born.
She, smiling, answered: "It is joy"
And to her heart she pressed the thorn.

Thinks She Can Get Along Much Better as Man Than as a Girl

ST. LOUIS.—Believing she could better make her way in the world as a man, Luella Roberts, sixteen years old, daughter of Henry Roberts, who lives two miles north of Alton, ran away from home in a suit of clothes she borrowed from her father's farm-hand. She was arrested in East St. Louis.

She says she grew tired of the drudgery of housework, the entire burden of which has been hers since her mother died, two years ago.

Luella is a brunette and tall for her age. In order to complete her disguise she cut off her long black braids. She says she had no scissors and that she covered her hair with a jagged piece of looking glass.

Her undoing came when, in the disguise of a young man in an ill-fitting suit, she asked for food at the home of C. A. Summers, 1449 Jefferson avenue, East St. Louis. She told Mrs. Summers that she was weak from hunger.

"If you will give me a quarter I will come back in the morning and do any kind of work you want me to," the misquanderer said.

After she had gone Mrs. Summers remembered several things about the caller's actions which made her suspect her visitor was a girl.

She notified the police, and they were laiden in the house when, true to promise, the "young man" returned in the morning.

Mrs. Summers said nothing to indicate her suspicion. She set the "young man" to work chopping wood in the rear yard. She and the police watched from a window.

"They noticed that the woodchopper was awkward and wore girl's shoes."

When Patrolman Leuty stepped into the yard the "young man" tried to escape, but was captured and taken to the police station. While preparations for a search were being made Luella broke down and acknowledged she was not a boy.

"I just wanted to get out and work for myself," she said. "I thought it would be fine, but after chopping that wood this morning I made up my mind to go home."

"I would rather be a girl. I am willing to go home," Luella said she bought a ticket at Alton and arrived in East St. Louis without money.

"It was the first time I was ever off my father's farm," the girl declared.

"Last night I took the quarter the lady gave me and I hired a room for the night."

"I didn't know there were such big places as Alton and East St. Louis. The crowds and the people made me afraid. I'll be glad to go back to the farm."

EXPERIENCE

And then you failed me,—failed me in my hour
Of greatest need,—but why should I upbraid?

I, who made prayer to God with all my power

That great burden on your heart be laid.

That you should still be kept from pain and grief,

That you should never know what I have known.

How could you understand and bring relief?

God heard my prayer—and I endure alone!

But if at any time His will should be

That you must suffer some keen sorrow, too,

Then may my dear bought knowledge lighten me

The way to comfort and to strengthen you.

for a full and complete campaign. W. J. Johnson is steering very minutely the fact that the campaign is to be further the good cause and has met with very gratifying success.

Dr. A. S. McKay is confident that his campaign will do its full share and has already turned over $2000.

C. S. Booth is putting in his entire time in the campaign. B. B. Gaylord is handling his team in such a satisfactory way that they have almost secured $5000 already. Arthur Caldwell, of the Commercial Appeal, has given $1000. Kern B. G. Johnson and half a dozen others are coming in very warm in their belief that the campaign is to be a thing that will do a lot of good to it that the people are doing it fast enough to attract the success of the campaign.

On the day 1 a yesterday many references were made to the Y. M. C. A. campaign and it is expected that the response today's canvass will be very satisfactory.

TWELVE THOUSAND FANS WITNESS OAKLAND GAMES

By EDDIE SMITH.

If there is a man, woman or child in the city of Oakland who will say, after viewing the crowds that turned out to the games of yesterday, that Oakland is not loyal to the National game of baseball, then let them step forward and receive credit for being the champion pessimists of the world.

Fully 12,000 people watched the three games played at the local parks and many thousands more watched the games, played on the sand lots about town by the rising young ball tossers of the future. If ever one had any doubt as to the loyalty of the people on this side of the bay for clean, pure sport that idea must have been knocked away high yesterday, for the Easter Sunday of 1909 was the greatest baseball day in the history of local baseball news.

In the morning game of the Coast League, where the Oakland team played the Portland web-footers, the crowd numbered at least 2500, while at the same hour as the game between this team was being played, almost as many people visited the State League grounds.

At the afternoon game of the State League, between Oakland and Stockton, fully six thousand people filled the spacious bleachers and grand stand, and even swarmed out over the field. The crowd at that game could only be likened to the crowds that witness the big league games in the large eastern cities. Automobiles and carriages turned out in great numbers, and the enthusiasm ran high.

Fully a thousand people, headed by a brass band, came down from Stockton to root for their team, and they certainly did root. They had provided themselves with cow bells and other noise-making implements, and at every opportunity they howled out their loyalty to the home team.

Oakland played the article of baseball that forbid much rooting for the visitors, however, and the cheer for the fans from the city of flour mills, their team losing both games of the day. The games played were of the character that has a tendency to create that seemed to enjoy them.

At the Coast League grounds the home team was not quite as fortunate in the matter of winning, the web-footers nosing them out by a 2 to 1 score. The game was well played, however, and the early morning fans left the grounds satisfied that the locals had fought every inch of the way.

Some of the pessimists who have been howling that Oakland will not support good amusement games, and especially baseball, must now hunt a hole and hide away, for Oakland yesterday gave evidence of her awakening and from now on she will be rated as one of the good baseball cities of the West.

KETCHEL AND JOHNSON MAY BE MATCHED BY COFFROTH

Great Middleweight and His Manager Will Meet With Champion at New York, Where Match May Be Made.

By EDDIE SMITH.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Sporting Editor TRIBUNE. Pressing Johnson hard. May land. Willing to bet $5000 Ketchel's wallop connects. Meeting Johnson today. WILLIE BRITT.

JIMMY Coffroth has certainly started a commotion in and around the little village of New York, pugilistically at least, and that he will come romping back home in a few days with some of the good matches dangling in his belt (there can be no doubt). After one application of Dr. Coffroth's salve Mr. Battling Nelson was brought back to his better senses and has now made it known that he will be on the ground ready to tackle Dick Hyland, and that he will also take on any other lightweight in the world if he wins. After leaving Chicago, where he treated Nelson, Dr. Coffroth met and talked with Willie Britt and Stanley Ketchel, and after covering them with the same salve that had immediately taken effect on the Battler he brought them into line for a match with big Jack Johnson.

Salve Fails on Jeff

After making sure that the Britt-Ketchel combination was properly fixed up, he left for New York and there he tried the same salve on the biggest of them all, Jim Jeffries, but the thick skin of the giant was too much for the first application and as time is very valuable, and Coffroth has not the time to waste covering one with salve, who acts as if he is afraid, Jeff was left alone and Ketchel, the already salved one, was selected as the opponent for the black man. Johnson was the next one left by Coffroth and the money salve was wasted on his side until he just walked with it. Johnson, after listening to the talk of the promoter, no doubt saw as high as the Alps and he was to earn all this by fighting on the Pacific Coast. Did he agree to fight? Well, he is a waiter take a tip? You bet he did. The above telegram from Willie Britt and the above telegram from Stanley Ketchel are ready to understand that while you are reading this article, Mr. Britt, Mr. Coffroth and Mr. Johnson are talking the match over. Now that Coffroth has the men all salved, that is the number of rounds, the referee and last, but not least by any means is the division of the spoils.

Purse May Cause Hitch

That is where the hitch is probable. Jeff will demand a certain sum for his man and Johnson will want more for himself. Ketchel will argue that he is giving the colored man a chance to make some money and that as he is a smaller man, he should get a good slice of the cash. Johnson on the other hand will tell Mr. Britt and Ketchel that he is giving them a chance at the championship of the world and that for this chance he should be willing to pay well and that he should get the lion's share of the money. There you are. On these questions the fighters and their managers will argue for hours, and perhaps after all the good work of Coffroth will be spoiled. If Britt's telegram can be taken for anything, however, it goes without saying that he will peep the colored man, until he is blue in the face for the match.

Kaufman and Jeff Shelved

In the mean time Al Kaufman and Jim Jeffries are once again shelved and the young Michigan fighter is to the front with all the boasting.

Packer McKeil and Battling Nelson have accepted the terms offered by Coffroth for a match between them, but they can not come to an agreement between themselves as to the weight. It would seem from this far off point that Packer had outgrown the lightweight class and that he would be foolish to try and make a weight that will send him into the ring in a weakened condition.

Stockton Champions Bite Dust Before 8500 Fans

Morning Game:

Oakland, 5; Stockton, 3.

Afternoon Game:

Oakland, 6; Stockton, 3.

Yesterday was a great day at the Grove-street park. Fully eight thousand five hundred people flocked to the grounds in the morning and afternoon to watch the invaders give the Stockton champs a trouncing. One thousand Slough City fans came to cheer for their warriors, but their shouts, against Henderson and Bloomfield, were in vain. The local ball artists were in rare form and gave an exhibition, which was a credit to any team. Benny showed superior work to Fitzgerald, but not by such a difference that he could slacken up, for Fitz kept working every minute.

Stockton's pass to first in the third frame started the ball rolling in the run column for Oakland. Three tallies were registered in that inning. Runs came one apiece in the fourth, fifth, sixth and eighth, while the Millers scored in the fifth, eighth and ninth. A spectacular play occurred in the seventh, when, with the bases full, Miller knocked out McKune. Instead of trying to get the runner home out McKune threw the ball to Campbell at second and the latter handled it like a flash, doubling Miller at first.

Two thousand fans were on hand to see the morning exhibition. Bloomfield, twice hit a major leaguer and kept the hits well scattered. The feature of the game was Nelson's terrific knock-out, scoring two runs. Joe was put out when he endeavored to stretch the hit into a home run. Danny Slav was ejected from the grounds for kicking at decisions.

YACHTSMEN BUSY OVERHAULING BOATS FOR BIG OPENING DAY

Yacht Iola of the Aeolian Yacht Club, Which Captain L. T. Ward Is Getting Ready for the Opening of the Season May 1.

Balmy summer days have come to Alameda and as a consequence the boys of the yachting fraternity are sprucing up and are giving their every effort, in their spare time, to making their yachts appear in ship shape order for the opening that is scheduled for May 1.

The first boat to get into trim at the opening of the season is Captain Strom's Nautilus, the flagship of the fleet. The boat is a 100, owned by Captain L. T. Ward. The Iola is one of the trimmest crafts in the fleet and is now being overhauled, and put into shape for the gay yachting days soon due.

Morning game: Portland, 2; Oakland, 1.

Afternoon game: Portland, 5; Oakland, 4.

Despite the heroic measures assumed by Van Halteren to stem the tide of successive defeats, the Portland team took both games yesterday, the morning at 4 p.m. at Freeman's Park from Boles and the afternoon from Wiggs and Christian at Recreation Wiggs threw his game away. He was as wild as a March hare, walked six men, four of whom scored. Truesdale was shifted to third, McCay going to second, but the change was poor, as Truesdale made a couple of bad misplays. In the seventh Wiggs gave way to Christian, and Christian was twirled for the Beavers, stepped down to give Grady the box in the fifth. The game was devoid of features.

The morning game was a lively pitchers' battle between Boles and Harkness. Both were effective, but the Beavertide the more lucky and, as a result, he came out at the long end of a 2 to 1 score.

The Beavers made their only run in the sixth frame when McCay tallied.
